Chapel Hill Kindy Program

An important goal of the Chapel Hill Community Kindergarten is the development of social human beings. An atmosphere of real warmth and empathy amongst the children and adults is fostered.

Three to five year old children have a lot to learn about how to get along with each other; about valuing themselves and others; about friendship; about kindness to all; and about peoples' similarities and differences. Our program offers a marvellous context for the development of these social and emotional skills as children go about their play having good fun, responding to conflict, and observing the behaviour of others while developing an awareness of their own.

Against a background of emerging self-control, sociability and growing emotional maturity, the highly qualified staff and thoughtfully designed and calm environment offer children an array of opportunities to develop their bodies' strength and dexterity; their abilities to think, imagine and express ideas and feelings; to increase their understanding of the world around them and the delights and obligations that awareness brings.
